The New Oxford high school band won its third state class C championship Saturday at the annual state music and forensic contests held at Norristown.

By gaining the championship award the New Oxford organization was granted permanent possession of a silver loving cup awarded by the national organization and a plaque by the state group for having won the title three years. New Oxford also gained state titles in 1936 and 1937.

The band is now composed of 64 members and is directed by Paul A. Harner. When organized in 1932 there were only 20 members. In 1933, 1935 and 1938 the band lost in the district meets and in 1934 lost at the state meet after winning the district honors.

Gettysburg College Junior Elected National President Of Classical Fraternity

Miss Eva M. Kochenour, of York, a member of the junior class of Gettysburg college, was elected national president of Eta Sigma Phi, honorary classical fraternity, which held its fifteenth national convention on the local campus Friday and Saturday.

Majoring in French with the intention of entering the teaching profession, the newly elected president is a member of the editorial board of "The Gettysburgian," treasurer of Kappa Delta Epsilon, recently established women's national educational sorority; a member of Phi Sigma Iota, honorary Romance language fraternity; organizations editor of the 1940 Spectrum, junior class year book, and a member of the Student Christian association.

Other officers elected at the Saturday morning business meeting were Miss Helen Osbey, of Morning-side college, recording secretary, and Edwin Miller, of Lehigh university, treasurer.

Delegates from 23 colleges and universities were present for the convention, at which time the following were featured speakers: Dr. Rhys Carpenter, eminent American archaeologist and professor at Bryn Mawr college; Prof. Denys L. Page, at present the lecturer in classical literature at Oxford University, England, and the visiting lecturer in the classics at Princeton university for the season, and Prof. William R. Ridington, an active archaeologist and director of classical studies at Western Maryland college.

Formal Installation Dinner
The newly chosen officers for the coming year were duly installed at the formal banquet held in the Blue Parrot tea room Saturday evening. Prof. Page delivered an address on "The Classical Tradition at Oxford." Significant is his declaration that most government positions are being filled by men trained in the classics, and that the number of Oxford undergraduates now taking classical subjects equals that of 1930, 1915, and 1910. The depression has not deflated Greek and Latin, he stated.

Also included in Saturday's program were the tour of the Gettysburg battlefield under the direction of Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, head of the college history department, and the formal dance in the Women's Division to the music of the recently organized campus dance orchestra under the direction of H. Keith and Robert H. Fischer, and Richard J. Henry.

WOMAN HURT IN 2 CRASHES DUE TO SKIDDING

Two cars collided Sunday afternoon on the hill of the Rock creek bridge at the edge of Gettysburg on the Hanover road, injuring one occupant and causing considerable damage to both cars.

A car operated by Loyola I. Keffer, 27, 198 Oxford avenue, McSherrytown, is reported to have skidded on the wet highway as it descended the grade. The Keffer machine slid into the pathway of a truck operated by Henry G. Seaman, 35, Harrisburg. The left fronts of the two cars collided.

The only person injured was Mrs. Seaman who suffered contusions of the right knee. She was riding with her husband.

Damage to the Keffer car was estimated at $125, while the damage to the Harrisburg truck was placed at $45.

Officer K. Yemzow, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, investigated.

2 Cars Wrecked

Two cars were badly damaged but the occupants escaped injury although one of the cars turned over on its top in a collision Sunday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock on a country road leading off the Westminister road about five miles south of Hanover. Officer C. W. Hamberger, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, investigated.

Clair R. Utz, Westminister R. 2, told Officer Hamberger his car had skidded on the slippery narrow road as he rounded a S-curve. The machine slid against the side of a car being driven by Herly G. Berwager, Hanover R. 1.

The Utz car struck a 12-foot bank and rolled over on its top on the highway, damaging the machine to the extent of about $75.

APRIL HOT AND COLD; RAINFALL ABOVE NORMAL

The month of April, which sent the mercury up to mid-summer heights, reaching 88 degrees on April 25, ended Sunday night with a low temperature that was near the freezing point.

The low reading for Sunday night and this morning in the official instruments of Dr. Henry Stewart, local observer, was 35 1/2 degrees. Still lower readings had been taken during the month with a low of 28 being listed on April 7, 9 and 13.

The average daily maximum temperature was 60.9 degrees and the average daily minimum was 40.4 degrees, setting an average daily temperature of 50.6 degrees for the month which was only one-tenth of a degree below normal.

The sudden and marked changes in the weather, which were so frequent last month, reached their peak on April 23 when the mercury moved through 39 degrees of temperature from maximum to minimum readings.

The suspicion that Gettysburgians and Adams county farmers have been voicing that far more copious April showers have been falling than can possibly be needed by the promised May blooms is confirmed in the weather report for the month. During the first four months this year Gettysburg has received more than three inches above the normal amount of rain.

April's showers amounted to almost one-third more than the average for the month. The rainfall was measured at 4.66 inches which is 1.06 inches above the normal. On two days—April 6 and 7—precipitation of 9 inches were measured. There was a trace of snow on April 9 and on 17 days of the 30 there were measurable amounts of rainfall.

Thirteen days last month were listed as clear, four as partly cloudy and the 13 others as cloudy. Gettysburg received only about 51 per cent of the available amount of sunshine last month.

There was fog on April 28 and killing frosts on April 5, 8 and 13.

INSURANCE CASE BEFORE COURT; N. O. MAN FINED ON TWO CHARGES

After hearing the testimony of one witness, counsel for E. G. Whited, Straban township, plaintiff in an assumpsit action against the Freystown Mutual Fire Insurance company, closed their case this morning in the re-trial of the suit which was before a jury here last November.

The taking of defense testimony began late this morning and was expected to close this afternoon with a possibility that the case may be placed in the hands of the jury for decision before court adjourns this evening. The case is the last for trial at the current session of court.

Through the suit now on trial Mr. Whited seeks to collect $2,000 from the insurance company as his interest in an eating place along the Lincoln highway east of here which was completely destroyed by fire early on the morning of March 23, 1937.

Whited who held a lien on the property which S. P. Jacques owned at the time of the fire, was in court but did not take the stand. His only witness was Theodore Warner, New Oxford, the man through whom Jacques took out the insurance policy with the Freystown company.

Restaurant Owner Fined
Defense counsel, in outlining their side of the case to the jury, promised to show that Warner never had been appointed an agent of the Freystown company; that an $8 assessment on the Jacques policy made in January of 1937 never was paid, and that Whited's judgment against the company was not covered under the law by the "mortgage clause" attached to the policy presumably for his protection.

The jury trying the case was drawn last week and held over for this trial, while all other members of the April panel were discharged. This morning Judge W. C. Sheely sentenced Irvin Livingston, New Oxford restaurant proprietor, to pay $25 each on two charges of maintaining gambling devices. He was ordered to pay the costs of the case also.

On Saturday afternoon seven men appeared before the court to explain why they have not complied with old court orders covering costs or support payments. All were told to return to court later for check-ups with several being given their "last chance" to pay, with jail as the alternative.

fatal accident on county highways, while four persons died in March. Figures on the April accident toll, as compiled by Corporal J. G. Warren, commander of the Gettysburg substitution of the state motor police, show that 14 crashes were investigated by officers last month as compared with 10 in April of 1938. The number of persons injured was 12 in each month and none of the injuries was fatal during the last two years in April.

The repair bill from April's crashes soared to $3,235 as compared with $1,279 in April, 1938. There were 77 arrests made by officers from the Gettysburg substitution last month and 50 arrests in April of last year.

April's figures mark a considerable drop from March's high totals. In that month there were 21 persons hurt, four fatally in 24 accidents. Vehicles involved were damaged to the extent of $4,095.

A comparison of the accident figures for the first four months of this year as against the same period in 1938 shows the following:

	1938	1939
Accidents	39	64
Injured	31	57
Killed	2	6
Damage	$3,803	$11,315

Even the higher figures for 1939 are below those for the corresponding period in 1937, the year in which an all-time high was set for this section in accident casualties. In the first four months of 1937, the accident total was 73.

EUROPE READY FOR SHOWDOWN ON DANZIG ISSUE

(By the Associated Press)

Guns and allies were Europe's May Day keynote today as the issue between Germany and Poland over the free city of Danzig and the Polish corridor apparently drew closer to a showdown.

In Berlin, Reichsfuehrer Hitler proclaimed Germany one of the "most heavily armed nations of the world" and Nazi diplomats pressed efforts to isolate Poland to make her ripe for yielding to German demands. Soviet Russia staged her annual May Day show in Moscow with emphasis on her military preparedness. Artillery and tanks thundered by and the bayonets of tens of thousands of soldiers glinted in the biggest military display the Red square ever has seen.

"Whoever dares to step on the thresholds of our home will be destroyed," declared Soviet Defense Commissar Klementi E. Voroshilov.

In Paris, an authoritative source said Premier Daladier and air minister, Guy La Chambre had mapped plans to strengthen France's air force as a counterpart to Britain's expansion of her army and plans for military conscription.

In London, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax placed Poland's reaction to Hitler's speech before the cabinet and was reported to have said British negotiations to bring Soviet Russia into the Anglo-French front were "making excellent progress."

Bills calling for military conscription of men aged 20 years for six months of training and enabling the government to call up reserve forces when it deems necessary were introduced in the house of commons.

Virginia Gayda, authoritative Italian editor, indicated Germany and Italy were working out a joint military plan to counter what he charged was an Anglo-English attempt at "encirclement."

The visit to Italy of Colonel-General Walter Von Brauchitsch, chief of staff of the German army, Gayda said, was for that purpose.

General Von Brauchitsch and General Alberto Pariani, chief of staff of the Italian army and under-secretary for war, were forced down by bad weather in Catania, Sicily, on a flight from Rome to Tripoli to inspect Italian north African defenses.

The possibility was raised in Warsaw that Poland might seek control of Danzig to block German action toward forcible annexation. An article in the official Gazeta Polska was interpreted as meaning that Poland might ask the League of Nations—the nominal administrator of Danzig—to transfer certain of its rights to the Polish government.

This followed reports that Hitler had backed up his demands for return of war-lost Danzig to Germany and a highway-railroad link through the Polish corridor to East Prussia with specific details of what he wants.

Hitler made two May Day speeches, taking occasion to strike at American action against German goods.

"The United States has organized a boycott against German goods," he declared. "It would have been better to import German goods than German emigrants."

He told Berlin's Hitler youth, "if ever the hour should come that the world believes it can reach out at Germany's freedom, then a million-fold cry will arise, so tremendous that the world will know unmistakably that the time of Germany's weakness is definitely past."

Miller, 35 Frederick street, both of Hanover, were damaged in a traffic mishap on Baltimore street, near Center square, Hanover, early Saturday morning. The Grim car, driven by Jacob D. Grim, Abbottstown, struck the Miller automobile, parked at the curb, according to police who investigated. Total damage was estimated at about $40. No one was injured.

"The South Carolina and Georgia Almanack" for 1764 is believed by experts to have been the first book ever published in Georgia.

DISSOLUTION OF R. R. APPROVED

A majority of the shareholders of the East Berlin Railroad company met Saturday evening at the company's terminal in East Berlin and passed a resolution asking the Public Utility commission of the state for permission to discontinue operations.

A total of 319 shares of the company's 519 were voted. The action was unanimous.

The railroad, one of the shortest in the state, remains in operation and will continue its two or three weekly trips as business warrants until the P.U.C. acts on the request for permission to end its services and voluntarily liquidate the company.

The railroad received its original charter in 1876 and there was a reorganization in 1915. At first passengers had been carried over the eight-mile line from East Berlin to Berlin Junction, near New Oxford, but with the establishment of a bus line that branch of the service was ended and only freight was handled.

The company's equipment will be offered for sale if the plans for dissolution of the company are approved.

Roper Named U. S. Minister to Canada

Washington, May 1 (AP).—President Roosevelt sent to the senate today the name of Daniel C. Roper, former Secretary of Commerce, to be minister to Canada.

Roper had been out of office since the middle of last December. His nomination to the diplomatic post brought him into a new field of service, although he has been in government work almost continuously since 1894.

When he left the Commerce department post, later filled by Harry Hopkins, the South Carolinian, who has just turned 72, explained he had to give "needed attention" to his personal affairs.

He became a senate clerk in Washington in 1894, served subsequently in the census bureau, Post Office department, tariff commission and as internal revenue collector.

ESTABLISH MILITARY POST IN CARIBBEAN

Washington, May 1 (AP).—The war department created a new first line of defense for the Panama canal today by establishing a military department in the Caribbean sea.

Secretary Woodring said headquarters of the new department would be located at the military reservation of San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The war department's action, taken under the direction of President Roosevelt, will bring under control of the new department beginning July 1 the islands of Puerto Rico, including all adjacent keys and islands, together with the Virgin Islands, belonging to the United States.

BOLBER SURRENDERS IN MURDER INVESTIGATION

Philadelphia, May 1 (AP).—Morris Bolber, known to detectives as "Louie the Rabbi," surrendered today in connection with the insurance-murder ring that investigators have estimated may have taken 100 lives, principally by poison, in the past 10 years.

A warrant, charging murder, was issued for Bolber last Thursday at the same time several others were held on charges of homicide.

He walked into city detective headquarters with his attorney, Bernard R. Cohn.

Police Captain James A. Kelly has said Bolber may have been one of two principals who originated the scheme that sent victims to their graves in four eastern seaboard states—and then collected the insurance on their lives.

PASTOR TELLS BOYS TO CHECK ON THEMSELVES

had the experience of carrying on a conversation with oneself.

"I once knew a man who would talk out loud to himself as he would walk down the street. His imagination was so strong that he would even act out his conversation. It was not uncommon to see him 'shadow boxing' or 'picking grapes' from some imaginary grapevine. We do at times associate the habit of talking to oneself with some sort of mental illness, but that habit is not altogether indicative of such characteristics.

"A now famous clergyman established the habit of reciting the 'centuries' out loud while he would be shaving before the mirror in his dormitory while a student. It is an old Chinese custom to recite one's lessons out loud. Dr. George Albert Butzer tells of a school chum of his who saluted himself every morning as he got up and who wrote letters to himself when his best girl failed to write to him. He would walk through the woods and talk to the birds and the trees. 'At least' he said, 'I am in good company.'

"Doctor Coue a few years ago advocated the slogan 'that one should repeat out loud, 'Every day in every way I am getting better and better.'

"Just plain talking to yourself has its advantages. It was the case with a 'scout' called the Prodigal Son. He had received his share of the inheritance and had gone out to spend it in riotous living. When he came to himself, he began to talk to himself in this wise, 'How many hired servants of my father's have bread enough and to spare, and I perish with hunger. I will arise and go to my father and will say unto him, Father I have sinned against heaven and before thee, and am no more worthy to be called thy son. make me as one of thy hired servants.' And he arose and went to his father."

"This boy should have talked to himself long before he did. A healthy self-criticism is a good thing now and then. There was once a boy who stopped in at the corner drug store to use a pay telephone to call his boss in this wise. Said the boy to his employer, 'I am calling up to see if you need a good clerk to work for you.' 'No,' said the employer, 'I already have a reliable boy working for me.' 'Thank you,' said the boy, 'I am that boy, I am just checking up on myself.'

"If we are to fulfill that part of the Scout oath which says: 'To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight' we had better check up on ourselves with a little self-examination a little bit of talking to oneself.

"Self-confidence and self-respect can be established if we but check up on ourselves occasionally. The Prodigal Son in his soliloquy, realized his predicament and with penitence returned to his father. 'I will arise and go to my father.' How necessary it is for us to do this very thing. We need to go to the Father of all fathers. And like Christ, increase in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

RED SOX WIN AND TIE YANKS FOR 1ST PLACE

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

It's going out of the way to find trouble for anyone to predict in the first month of the baseball season that a player who now is injured and out of the lineup will win a major league's most valuable player award come autumn.

Yet Joe DiMaggio, cooped up in his New York hotel room today with a leg tightly bandaged, ought to be the choice of baseball writers when next they ballot. The records show that as DiMaggio goes, so go the Yankees.

He tore some muscles in his right leg in a fall Saturday and the world champions immediately lost two games to the Washington Senators, Sunday's by a 3-2 score.

Right now he is leading the American league in hitting with a .435 average and hasn't failed to hit safely in any game.

The defeat of the Yankees Sunday enabled the Boston Red Sox to climb into a tie for first place by beating the Philadelphia Athletics 3-1. Jim Bagby didn't take any chances on his seven-hit hurling deciding the game and contributed a home run to his cause.

The Detroit Tigers turned loose a broadside against Cleveland to win, 14-1, with Tommy Bridges holding the Indians to six hits and fanning eight.

Chicago's White Sox squeezed past the St. Louis Browns, 6-5, in the other American league game.

While the Cincinnati Reds were rained out at Pittsburgh the Boston Bees won their third straight to push within a half game of the top. Their 3-2 victory over the New York Giants, who have lost four in a row.

The Chicago Cubs displaced St. Louis in third position by beating the Cardinals 4-1 although output 10 to 6. It was the second pitching triumph for rookie Gene Lillard, whom the White Sox once turned down as an infielder.

In the other game of the 3-1 Brooklyn beat Philadelphia beat-day on the hitting of Gene Moore and seven-hit pitching of Luke Hamlin, who now has won three in a row.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, May 1 (AP)—Week's wash: Looks like the whole country is pulling for Lou Gehrig—his fan mail right now is the heaviest ever. Seems to us the boys who are busy electing Luke Sewell to succeed Oscar Vitt at Cleveland are putting a couple of mighty nice guys on the spot. . . . Penn relays news indicates Jock Sutherland merely shifted from the football to the track squad. . . . The Washington anvil chorus is in full swing again, likening Clark Griffith's payroll to those in Philly and St. Louis.

Today's guest star—Nixon Denton. Cincinnati Times-Star: "Mr. Louis Schaefer breaks out with a suggestion designed to honor Maj. Abner Doubleday, one of the originators of baseball. . . . Brother Schaefer would substitute Doubleday for double headers."

Mail box: Bobby Feller: The White Sox say you are a better pitcher than ever before and getting better. . . . Dutch Meyer: They're betting around Austin Texas Christian doesn't win the southwest grid title again this year. . . . Up state N. Y. editors: Get ready for a whole-sale House of David invasion. . . . Washington Redskins: You may as well start looking for another end. Bob Masterson is going to stay in Florida and Coach Ponce De Leon high at Coral Gables. . . . Frankie Frisch: The baseball writers say they can't help missing the sight and sound of you on the Cardinal bench.

Gabby Hartnett took a few huffs and puffs in batting practice the other day and almost blew the park down. . . . One of Dizzy Dean's pitches landed in almost the same spot as did the famous Hartnett homer of last year against the Pirates. . . . Another cleared the palings. . . . A third darn near tore the fence down. . . . Gabby howled towards the Cub bench: "That's just to keep Man-cuso hustling for his job."

Luke Sewell (at $12,500 per) is the highest paid bull pen catcher in baseball. . . . Johnny Betardino, rookie second sacker of the Browns, is drawing rave notices all around the circuit. . . . Among the 1939 frosh at Texas U., Dana Bible will find a lad who scored 267 points in 1937 and another who rolled up 245 last year. . . . George Abrams, Washington's fighting cartoonist, is a crowd pleaser and is set to go places as a middleweight.

What's this about the Yale brass hats suggesting that backfield coach Earle (Greasy) Neale drop his nickname? . . . Dan Parker of the N. Y. Mirror is driving wrestling promoters nuts the way he is printing the results of their matches a day ahead of time. . . . Yanks, Giants and Dodgers doubt if the World's fair will help baseball attendance much. . . . Zeke Bonura, who likes an apple a day (along with his bananas) was charged 40 cents per for same by a Philly hotel. . . .

Overheard—Casey Stengel: "What are you going to do with your World's series dough?" . . . Doc Prothro: "Invest it in oil wells."

Only one game was played Saturday afternoon of the four listed to open the 1939 season of the Adams county baseball league, Fairfield, nosing out Bendersville in a slugging match at Fairfield, 9-8. Rain and wet grounds forced other tilts to be postponed.

Ray McLaughlin started on the mound for Fairfield but weakened in the late innings and was forced to give way to J. Donaldson who finished.

Bendersville used four hurlers who were socked for a total of 16 safeties including five doubles. The victors took the lead in the third inning when they tallied three runs and sewed up the contest with four runs in the seventh. Bendersville put on a desperate rally in the eighth by pushing over four tallies but fell short of tying the count.

BURNING WATER

Uniontown, Pa.—Volunteer firemen hurrying to an alarm found Redstone creek on fire. A boy had thrown a lighted cigaret in the water, igniting a pool of gasoline floating down the stream.

MOORE AND MOORE

Granite Falls, N. C.—The mayoral election next month will be a family affair. The two candidates are E. E. Moore and C. G. Moore, brothers. Both are bankers.

FISHERMAN'S PARADISE

Seymour, Texas—This west Texas town of 2,700 is a ghost city today. School rooms are empty. Courts are closed. Only skeleton crews of policemen and firemen are on duty. It's this way: When Kemp was built, providing excellent fishing to this prairie area, anglers complained because May 1, opening day, was not a holiday. The mayor easily remedied that—he declared a holiday.

COINCIDENCE

Chicago—Albert Winter and Albert Dillon were strangers. They ate dinner at separate tables in the same restaurant. Winter left first, got into a parked sedan, drove home and went to bed. Dillon also got into a parked sedan, started for home, but detoured to police headquarters. "It's the same make, same model, same year, same color and my keys fit it, but it's not my car," he reported. Police traced the license to Winter, who came down to headquarters. The men exchanged cars.

STIFF FEE

Chicago—Asam Campagna, a grocer, and his wife, Anne, stepped up to two well-dressed men in the loop and asked what elevated train they should take to reach the home of friends. The men led the couple to the platform of a nearby station and put them on the right train. As the train began to move, Campagna looked out the window and waved at the men. One waved back with Campagna's billfold containing $22.

WORLD OF TODAY

New York—World's fairs may come and go, but Coney Island goes on forever. Grover Whalen estimated his $160,000,000 opus on Flushing flats, pre-viewing the "World of Tomorrow," drew slightly more than 600,000 opening day customers Sunday. Only a few miles away, 250,000 persons thronged Coney Island, home of the hot dog and the boardwalk.

Two Against Love

By Frances Hanna

Chapter One

A STRANGE WILL

In obedience to Jocelyn's touch the sleek black horse slowed his rollicking canter to a walk. "Mephisto," she murmured, "you're the wisest horse in the world!" She patted his proud neck. "You knew, didn't you, that Geoffrey was going to kiss me and I didn't want to be kissed? He won't forgive you for running away, you black demon!"

Mephisto turned his head to look at her flying red hair and laughing mouth. He blinked his eyes, then sidled toward the long row of palm trees which lined the driveway at ten-foot intervals. Sometimes, when his mistress was in reckless mood, she let him do the stunt he loved; zigzagging through the line of gray tree trunks as fast as he could go. He hesitated expectantly as another horse trotted up.

"Jocelyn," reproved the blond young man called Geoffrey, "why must you ride that horse? If you can't control him you should stay off him!"

Mephisto's wish was granted. A slight jerk of the rein sent him weaving through the trees with the breath-taking agility of a circus horse, his rider, low on his neck, urging him on.

"I love you," said Jocelyn as he frisked to the stable. Geoffrey Kensing, dismounting, surveyed her with disapproving eyes and tight lips. "A broken neck will not be humorous," he snapped.

"I know," she agreed, "but you can always shoot me."

"Oh, skip it, Geoff. How hot is it today? Not enough for a swim? I saw a couple of daring souls in the surf."

He shrugged his big shoulders. "It would mean nothing to you that this is only the middle of March!"

"So what? The pool is heated to seventy degrees and some March sun will do no harm to my lily-white skin. Meet you in ten minutes."

Running toward the great English manor of gray brick she heard Mephisto whinney. She wished Geoffrey understood her as well as Mephisto did; but, she reflected, skipping up the stairway to her rooms, how could one expect a man to have the understanding of a horse? Geoff knew polo ponies but he certainly did not know women. Rather a darling, though, and magnificent on the polo field.

After adjusting a blue satin swim-suit over her slender, compact curves she tucked her thick wavy hair under a blue cap, snatched a robe and hurried out to the tiled swimming pool at the side of the house. Seeing that Geoff had not yet appeared she bounced twice on the springboard and plunged into the clear, sun-dappled water.

Geoff, joining her at the side of the pool, said, "Lyn, you're stubborn and willful and you worry me to death, but right now your eyes look like huge sapphires set in borders of black onyx. May I kiss them?"

She held still while his lips brushed her lashes, then she dived to the bottom of the pool. Coming up she called, "In what novel did you read that simile?"

"All right," he smirked. "So I have no imagination and no sense of humor. Your grandmother told me that often enough. She didn't like me, did she?"

"Of course she did. But most of the time she lived in the past. I suppose that accounts for that sentimental will she left."

Geoffrey frowned. "I guess we can stop worrying about it. It's been six months and if that tribe of Texas farmers intended moving in here they would have arrived by now. Seems funny they didn't grab at the chance of getting half this estate when the lawyers say the whole outfit are as poor as church mice."

"Perhaps it's pride. Haven't you ever heard of 'Poor but Proud'?"

"They once had money, didn't they?"

Romantic Story

Jocelyn stretched out on the grass, tucked off her cap and ruffled her hair, then relaxed like a cat under the warm sun and vagrant sea breeze. "It's a long story," she sighed. "Grandmother told me this now and then."

"Tell me," he urged. "Or would you rather hear about the new ponies I bought for the club championship match?"

"No," she objected wryly. "I can recite the history of every pony you've owned in the last ten years! I know I am being very rude to you, darling, but after all, seeing you practically every day for four years entitles me to some privileges, doesn't it?"

"Apparently. But it doesn't seem to entitle me to any. You somehow succeeded in dangling me like a shoe-string. . . . even though everybody knows we're going to be married this fall."

"Oh, they do?" she inquired sweetly. "How romantic!"

"I don't know how to be romantic and you know it, Lyn," he protested. "But—enough—'Till make you an excellent husband."

Surveying him objectively, she decided his chest was over-developed from polo playing. He reminded her of professional models who posed for advertisements reading:

Do Not Be A Weakling! After Ten Easy Lessons in Self-Development You Can Look Like This!

A giggle escaped her. She said, "Anyhow, Grandma Jocelyn's story is romantic, so listen. Way back in eighteen-eighty, when she was nineteen and looked as I do now, except for the addition of twenty petticoats and prim curls, she fell in love with Talbot Mack."

the handsome, dashing son of a Scotch-Irish proper merchant. The very proper Boston Thorndykes—who spoke only to the Cabots—did not approve their daughter's choice, but Miss Jocelyn Thorndyke had a will of her own and told them to mind their own affairs. A few days before the wedding she quarreled with her sweetheart, and to spite him eloped with Homer Russell, a rich and adventurous Englishman. He brought her out here by train and covered wagon, along with furniture and English pride, and built this palace overlooking the Pacific. Instead of pining away with a broken heart she managed to outlive Grandfather Russell, my father and mother, and bring up three grandchildren. . . .

Geoffrey nodded. "You and Thorndyke and Robert."

"She never stopped dreaming of this Talbot Mack, though. I suppose that's why she left half her estate to him and his heirs. You know, I might have liked him," she mused. "He sailed all over the world, squandering his money, married an Irish barmaid, and finally settled on a land grant in Texas. He must be past eighty by now."

"And he might have been your grandfather!" Geoff put in. "He sounds impossible! Say, what about this grandson of his? The one you have to marry before this estate can be sold?"

"Another Talbot Mack, my dear. Grandma had strange dreams, Geoff. She had some notion of her romance living again through me. I told her long before she became ill that some day I would marry you."

"Perhaps that's why she put that clause in the will," he meditated. "You know she never wanted this place sold and if you married me you never could sell it."

Jocelyn did not answer. She was thinking that whatever old Jocelyn's reason, she had kept it to herself and carried it into the beyond. Lyn wondered if the old lady had been slightly unbalanced by her long illness. In more ways than one her will indicated it. She had never had respect for Thorndyke's financial capabilities, keeping the money reins in her own hands until the last, yet she had made him trustee and administrator of the estate and the forty thousand dollars in securities.

"Here come Bob and Thorndyke," Geoff said. "They've been playing tennis."

"Fondal Baron"

Bob Russell, a tall young man with gray eyes and humorous mouth, flopped to the grass beside his sister and rubbed the cars of Sandy, the black Scottie, nuzzling beside her.

"Horse history lesson?" he whispered.

"No. Will-pondering. Deciding we are probably safe at last from invasion."

"I hope not. At least it promised change and excitement. I wish the whole darned tribe of Macks would descend and relieve my boredom! Here I am, a healthy young man of twenty-four with nothing to do but play tennis and watch polo matches! It no longer gives me any satisfaction to beat them."

"Then why do you try?" his older brother inquired. "If you really want something to do you might take an interest in helping me manage this estate."

"Nuts! It's the first responsibility you've had in your life and you relish it! Already you've assumed the lordly mien of a feudal baron."

"I am the head of the family now," Thorndyke said self-consciously.

Bob's grin mocked him. "And Lyn and I are so thankful we have you to care for us. How about increasing our allowances? I want a new car."

"I'm not going to touch the principal," Thorndyke asserted. "We are going to live on the interest."

"Stingy!" Lyn accused.

"Miser!" Bob echoed.

Geoff bristled to Thorndyke's defense. "Both of you are irresponsible. Neither of you know anything at all about handling money. I doubt if you know the value of a dollar!"

"Does anyone?" Bob gibed. "Do you?"

Thorndyke cleared his throat nervously and smoothed his neat brown mustache. He was a stocky man, squarely built, with large, pale blue eyes and a prim mouth. He had little patience with his younger brother whom he privately considered an embryo radical.

"Do you suppose," Bob baited in innocent tones, "if I wrote a friendly letter to old Talbot Mack down in Texas he would join our family circle? I'd like to get the lowdown on his ancient love affair with Grandmother."

"If you dare do such a thing!" Thorndyke began.

"Oh, I won't. Don't worry. But I still wish he'd come and protect me from boredom. All this Russell family tradition stuff is making me a maniac-depressive!"

"Better take a plunge and cool off," Jocelyn suggested. "And, Thorndyke, I've decided to give a small luncheon party on Friday. . . . about twenty people. . . . I think we can begin entertaining a little now."

The dog snored loudly. "Invite the pup in my place," Bob said. "He can sleep through your dull party with impunity and I can't."

Jocelyn flushed. "You can be horrid, Bob. You forget we have a position in society to maintain. I love this place and its history and I'm proud of everyone who lived here! I'm glad my grandfather was once governor of California! I like being important and I like having things and I'm sick and tired of your soap-box scolding!"

Bob laughed. "That red-headed temper of yours is going to get you in trouble some day, my pet!"

"She is quite right in everything she says," Thorndyke declared.

"In that case," Bob chuckled, "Perhaps I ought to go down to Texas and move in with the Macks! What do you think, Sandy?"

The sleeping dog began to whimper and tremble. "He's dreaming," Jocelyn said. "What about, I wonder?"

But Sandy could not tell them he was having night-marish visions in which he was being chased by a huge white cat with baleful amber eyes. . . .

Continued tomorrow.

TIME TO DIG

Uniontown, Pa.—Miner L. F. Wiley is still digging despite shut-down of the bituminous fields but it's his own grave instead of coal that's occupying his time. The 49-year-old man said he had no fear of immediate death but wanted to be prepared. Wiley obtained state board of health approval of his plans a year ago but didn't find time to dig the grave in a cemetery near his home until the wage deadlock left him without work.

An Evening Thought
Flowers are sent to do God's work in unrevealed paths, and to diffuse
influence by channels that we hardly suspect.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Out of the Past
Happenings of days gone by
as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg
Times the files reveal.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO
On motion of D. M. Smyser, Esq., Conrad Baker, Esq., was admitted
last week to practice in the several Courts of Adams county.

Married: On Wednesday evening
last, by the Rev. Mr. Gutelius, Mr.
James Ogden, to Miss Margaret
Degroff—both of this place.
On the 29th ult., by the Rev. J.
Albert, Mr. John Crumrine to Miss
Eliza Sheely—both of Germany
township.

County Meeting: We observe in the last "Star" the proceedings of an anti-masonic meeting held in the Court-house on Monday evening
last, for the purpose of appointing Delegates to the Anti-masonic State Convention. T. Stevens, D. M.
Smyser, and D. Middlecoff, Esq.'s were appointed Delegates from Adams county. The meeting also requested Mr. Stevens to take his seat in the Legislature during the Extra Session.

Gettysburg Rail-Road: We are pleased to find that this important work is not entirely abandoned, if we are to judge from an article in the last "Compiler," which, no doubt speaks the sentiments of the "powers that be" in this particular.
The paper says: "The suspension is only designed to be temporary, provided that it can be ascertained that it is the interest of the Commonwealth to continue work on it."
We have, therefore, very sanguine hopes of the work being re-commenced—as there is but little doubt that an impartial examination will result in a favorable report as to its continuance. The excellence of the work already done, the practicability
of the route, and its direct course
to the Western waters, all speak
loudly in favor of the Road.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
John Busbey, Esq., has been appointed Assistant assessor for the 5th Division of the 16th District, in room of Samuel Durboraw, deceased.

Married: On the 17th of March,
at Martinsburg, W. Va., by Rev. Mr.
Hanson, Mr. Joseph M. Miller, to Miss Charlotte L. Wertz, both formerly of Adams county.
On the 1st of March, by Rev. H.
S. Billingsley, Chaplain of the 101st Regiment, P. V., Lieut. T. S. Welty, Company K, same Regiment, to
Mrs. Anna Woodman, of Plymouth,
N. C.
On the 21st ult., by Rev. A. Essick,
Mr. William Kaufman, of Franklin county, to Miss Kate Pitzer, of Cumberland township, Adams county.

Hon. Thad. Stevens of Pennsylvania, who has worn a wig for these twenty years, was lately applied to in behalf of the St. Louis Sanitary Fair for a lock of his hair to put in a Congressional wreath.
After some weeks of snow, rain,
and bad weather generally, we are
once more favored with bright sunshine. The birds are singing, the trees are budding, and we can feel
now that spring is coming in earnest.

The Gettysburg Springs property, (formerly Goodyear's), in Franklin township, this county, was recently sold by Messrs. John Downey and John Hoffman, Assignees, to Mrs. Hostetter, of Shippensburg, for $3,500. One hundred acres of land go with the Springs.

At a meeting of the ladies at Mrs.
R. G. McCreary's, "Gettysburg Ladies
Aid Society for the Christian Commission" was organized. We would request every one who feels any interest in such a society, to meet at Mrs. Carson's on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Donations of all kinds will be acceptable.

The State Capitol: A strong effort is being made for the removal of the seat of Government from Harrisburg to Philadelphia, and a joint resolution to that effect has passed the Senate by a vote of 19
to 10; that city having offered one million of dollars for the erection of the necessary buildings.

Died: On the 17th ult., Samuel Hollinger, son of Augustus and Polly Dietrick, of Heidelberg, aged 9 years, 4 months and 9 days.
On the 19th ult., Edward Gilbert,
son of Daniel Saltzger, of Butler
township, aged 3 years.

On Monday morning, in this place, Cynthia, wife of Daniel F.
Pitteturi, and eldest daughter of Solomon Powers, in the 30th year
of her age.

On the 5th ult., Mr. John Hartman, of Hamilton township, aged 53
years.

On the 19th ult., in this place,
Mrs. Sarah A. Bath, aged about 60
years.

At Hampton, on the 17th of April,
after a lingering illness, Mr. Henry Rummel, aged 49 years.

The Southern rebels as well as folks in the North, are fond of shaking their heads in view of Lieutenant General Grant's approaching campaign in Virginia,
with the remark that though Grant
has heretofore been successful in beating the rebel generals, he has never yet encountered General Lee.
That is true enough. But do these people ever think that, if it
be true that Grant has never fought Lee, it is equally true that Lee has never met Grant?

RELIEF CASE
TOTAL REDUCED
Harrisburg, May 1 (AP)—Directly-opposed economic trends clouded Pennsylvania's relief situation today while lawmakers considered
plans to revise the system under which the dole is administered.
On the one hand was a seasonal gain in private employment tending to reduce the number of Pennsylvanians dependent upon relief; on the other was idleness in the bituminous region, throwing new thousands on the dole.
Further complicating the situation were W.P.A. layoffs, only partly counterbalanced by the transfer of relief beneficiaries to unemployment compensation rolls.
The net result, the department of Public Assistance reported, was that the total on relief dropped by another 2,100 persons to a total of 741,800 dependent entirely upon the state in the week ended April 22.

Seventeen cases were opened in Adams county during the week ending April 22. Fourteen were closed in the same period.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

AN ALOHA FAREWELL

S. S. LURLINE — Leaving Honolulu is unlike any other farewell in the world. You feel as though you had left something very vital of yourself behind — and that you must resolve then and there to return and be united to it again.
Departing passengers form a stream of fragrant flowered leis as they leave the crowded dock for their ship. Every deck, as the signal is given to move out to sea, is one long flowered ribbon of color. The magic music of the Royal Hawaiian Band is a thing never to be forgotten as its famous theme song Aloha floats upon the air and lingers in one's memory.
Something comes up in your throat as you glance at the waving hands of friends packed upon the disappearing dock and the balconies, and you glance from your deck to see stores of leis that have been cast upon the water, and which form a line of flowered color, floating back to shore — significant of the love and appreciation for all your hospitality while upon the islands, and of your dreams of returning.

Small craft follow, catching leis from departing friends, and waving final farewells in a silent Aloha. Then your big ship blows its horn when opposite the Royal Hawaiian and Moana Hotels, you take your last glance at Diamond Head, in its ever Sphinx-like mood — and then Memory takes up its task. The silvery surf of Waikiki beach, the warm sands, the sturdy riders upon their surf boards, those incomparable clouds that forever float and form about the mountains, the tropic valleys with their daily rainbows, the sugar cane and pineapple plantations, the native Hula girls as they softly sing, chant, and silently illustrate through the movements of hands, fingers and body, Hawaii's cherished traditions — these, too become but buried memories, as your ship points homeward.
Comfortably, upon a smooth sea, you journey toward the Golden Gate at San Francisco. Few sights are so fascinating as the deep blue, saphire sea. The Pacific Ocean has lived up to its name on this trip of mine. It has been pacific all the way!

One evening I was called to the starboard side of our ship for an unusual sight. A crescent rainbow was before us — perfect in all its primary colors. It seemed but a few hundred feet away — and then one end crept up until it reached the very sides of the ship. The nearest I ever have come to touching one!

A Duke and Duchess are on board. No — not them! A friendly atmosphere abounds. There is no democracy quite like the one that reigns upon a ship. And there is no trip quite so happy and thrilling as the one to the Hawaiian Islands and return. Just ask the one who has taken it!

Four and a half glorious sea days — and again we are at the mainland in San Francisco's harbor. Back from a dream fulfilled!

Old Home Week Murder

BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

Chapter 49
'Oh Billingsgate To Thee'
"Eloise wormed out Weston's
plans to take his money and grab
a boat," Asey said. "She probably said, 'me too. They planned to clean up and beat it, tomorrow.
As time goes on, Eloise thinks how nice it'd be to make a clean sweep.
An' then Saturday, Tertius Pretty-
man brings over this policy of Mary's. I called him, and he said Eloise seen it. Seen it was for Jane. It—"
"For me?" Jane said. "Oh! I saw the policy around, but I never looked, or asked. I didn't know that!"
"That was the last straw," Asey
said, "for Eloise. She called Weston, and told him Mary Randall had found out. They'd have to kill her. I'm sure her murder was no part of their planning before. So Weston calls me in—"
"What on earth for?" Sara demanded. "And what about the shootings, and the fires, and all the sabotage?"
"Why does a magician have a pretty girl in his troupe?" Asey asked. "Why's he tell funny stories? Just so you'll be twice as amazed when the bird goes into the cage an' melts away. Of course he called me. You don't arrest the feller who calls the cop for help.
Now he begun this sabotage with an idea of takin' folks' minds off
the town accounts an' such durin'
a crucial time. In case you get suspicious, here's this menace to hang your suspicions on. That's how it begun. Then Eloise tells Wes that her mother's found out—Mary's got to be killed."

"Did she know?" Sara asked.
"I thought so at first, because Jane said she wanted to see me. I think now she wanted to have me
find out what was goin' on up here
nights. But it was Eloise's opportunity, an' she had someone else
to do the dirty work. All the sabotage could pave the way for a murder, just as nice. They planned on the fireworks noise. An' Weston went through with it for Eloise—"
"Lady Macbeth," Kay said.
"Sort of. Now Weston come here
from the fire, an' he got back uptown in time to return with Lane
an' the doc. General Philbrick's told me how Wes popped in an'
out before the fire, an' after, sayin'
he had 'Town Stuff' to attend to.
After the fire — which he set — at Slade's, he cut over here, posed in the dummy, shoots Mary, an' rips up town. He stole Jane's gun, 'she give Slade, to have if he needed
to plant clues. Used his own gun, though. Know where we found it?"

"I know," Jeff said. "At least, I guess. At the town offices, hanging over his desk."
"Exactly," Jeff said. "Nicest
place to hide a gun, in full sight of
all. That's why Weston was so jil-tery when Tertius broke in there.
After he found out all was well, he calmed down. It matches up with the shells we found in the dummy,
his gun does. Oh, he had to plant things, Slade, because you didn't react right. You went off the handle an' forced his hand. He planted that note in your studio, even though Brinley wrote it."
"That laugh," Zeb said. "What about that?"

Jelly-Jelly
Lane passed over a small, oddly shaped metal object.
"This," Asey said, "this thing
here. It was a signal for Eloise—an' partly just to mock us, later.
Where'd you get it, Ham?"
"Weston's pocket. It's like the one you found in Eloise's things."

"Nice signal," Asey said. "Not somethin' that'd attract a crowd.
All right, to get back. Weston plants shells an' Jane's gun. We don't fall for 'em. He comes here to try an' get his own shells from the dummy's pocket. He gets thwarted by Kay an' me an' the troopers. He's gettin' scared, an' I think he's beginnin' to figure Eloise
double-crossed him an' that Mary Randall didn't know a thing.
That chase let you out, Jeff, an'
Brinley, just from the physical end of it. Now, we got to day before yesterday."

"Historical Day," Brinley said
automatically.
"Also judgin' day," Asey said,
"for the exhibitions an' contests in the hall. Historical tours. Weston slipped off on one of the tours, an'
sneaked in here. Came to see Eloise, found her goin' down cellar, an'
realized that he had his opportunity, the opportunity of his life,
to get rid of her. He did. That night he made one last attempt to get the shells he'd left in the fig-
ure's pocket—sure, it was him we chased in Lane's car, Kay. He left the car an' beat it for Brinley's, an'
got a swell alibi out of Amos. He strung me up there, though. Jeff an' Lane an' Brinley said he called
'em, but we looked into the calls.
He made 'em enroute, not from his house. And there you are."

"Maybe," Kay said, "but the jelly—the beachplum jelly? What
about that?"
Asey smiled. "After the judgin',
that photographer took all the prize stuff, the vegetables an' preserves an' all, to another room to make pictures of 'em. Bertha's prize jelly was among the stuff.
He an' Weston carried the stuff
there, so as to take the pictures
with the background of the 'big banner an' the cups—Weston
wouldn't let the cups be moved.
The photographer, General Phil-
brick remembers, had on his rain coat. Later, he took it off. He left Bertha's jelly in his rain coat pocket."

"What of it?" Kay said.
"Weston, in a hurry to see Eloise,
grabs the photographer's rain coat
for his own. They're most duplicates. In the kitchen here, Eloise,
at the head of the stairs, throws
the shears at him when she realizes somethin' happenin'. They strike the rain coat pocket. Pop goes the jelly. We got Buck's coat, where Weston cleaned it up. Buck didn't notice it, but Lane found enough to prove our point. Weston has to have prize jelly. So he goes down cellar, grabs a jar of jelly from the preserve closet—an' later puts the labels from Bertha's jar on it.
Takes it back to the show. Been all right, if Bertha hadn't given me the jelly as a present."

"Mathematical Minded"
How'd you know the jelly came from here?" Kay asked.
"I thought an' thought," Asey
said honestly, "an' the only person
I could think of who could make as bad jelly as that was Eloise. I remembered the preserves in the cellar, an' hot-footed it up here,
an' found what was supposed to be Bertha's was a mate to the stuff in this cellar. Took a little connectin', but it proved someone who had to do with the judgin', or the town,
had been here. Wasn't the photographer. He spent the rest of the afternoon at the hall. I could place
Brinley, an' Jeff. Bout that time Paterson was sure of one or the other of you. But I could place you
—that's the advantage of havin'
wives. Weston started out to guide
one of the historical tours, but he eased out on account of 'Town

Stuff. He came here, an' then rejoined his tour. An' I remember one more thing about Weston's bel'n a bachelor. He wouldn't see the error of switchin' jelly, like Brinley or you, Jeff."

"I still don't see," Jeff said. "But
—yes, I do too. The more he protested that this trouble would have to come to light, and ruin the week,
and the town, the more it spurred
you on, Asey, and the rest, to keep it quiet. And then he had Eloise to play the trump card, and say that her mother would have wanted it kept undercover, to help the town.
He bullied us into silence with his deceitfulness. And he was the last person you'd suspect, Asey, too. By the time things got out, he would have been gone. He's a planner. Mathematical minded — why did he plant so much against Jane?"

Asey smiled. "Jane," he said,
"when Weston first come here, did
he specifically announce that he come to call on Eloise?"

"Why, no, but—"
"You thought so, but he come
to see you," Asey said. "Yes, that's
so. Up to his house, we found four pictures of you. He come to see you, but he got Eloise. Does that clear some of that up? You naturally turned him over to Eloise, an'
she done the rest. She hated you,
an' I guess by then, he did, too.
An' then you want to remember
on them chases we had, on foot
an' by car, he-thought like a Mayo, pretty much. An' today
when I seen him up to the ball
park, runnin' around, an' winnin'
the tug of war, an' all, I—well,
there you are. Weston b'gum it an'
Eloise finished it, an' him. Town
money, an' a lot of hate."

Sunday night's fireworks wound
up Billingsgate's Old Home Week.
Asey, a little apart from the crowd, watched the big cross with all the little crosses around it melt out of sight. Upjohn's band struck up "Billingsgate Beautiful," and Madame Meaux, with the expression of one tried beyond endurance but none the less determined to endure still more, began the song. She sang it with infinite care, and for the first time, Asey
heard most of the words.

"Where e'er the wandering foot
may roam,
On foreign land or sea,
Our thoughts turn ever more to Home,
Oh Billingsgate to thee."

TREASURY HAS 4-POINT PLAN TO AID BUSINESS

Washington, May 1 (AP)—The Treasury was disclosed by well-informed legislators today to have drafted a comprehensive four-point
program to eliminate taxes criticized
as "business deterrents."
The lawmakers outlined the program as follows:
1. Elimination of the present un-distributed profits, capital stock,
and excess profits taxes. Substitution of a flat-rate corporation income levy of not more than 22
percent.
2. Reduction in higher-bracket
personal income taxes from a maximum of 75 percent to a maximum of 60 percent.
3. Authorization for corporations to carry over tax credits for losses
for three years instead of one.
4. Modification of the capital gains tax in an effort to encourage investment.
The legislators indicated that President Roosevelt had approved
the entire program except the proposed reduction in upper-level income taxes. Secretary Morgenthau probably will discuss that idea with ways and means committee next week.
The suggested tax reduction would not affect incomes under $5,000 a year.

CHICKEN CROSSING ROAD

Philadelphia, May 1 (AP)—Motorists footed their horns and slowed
down at the busy mid-city intersection of the 17th and Chestnut streets Sunday for—of all things—a chicken. Radio car policeman, called to the scene, said the hen probably escaped from a passing truck.

PASTOR DIES IN PULPIT

Rev. Stephen A. Zuber, 77, Lansdowne, Pa., evangelist, collapsed and died of a heart attack in the pulpit
of the Penecostal Church of Glad Tidings Saturday night, a day after
he had officiated at his son's funeral.

ROOSEVELT SAYS N. Y. FAIR HELPS PEACE IN WORLD

New York, May 1 (AP)—New York's $160,000,000 World's fair,
which took three years to build, is here at last.

The greatest international exposition in history—two square miles of Long Island embracing 300
gleaming buildings, 50 miles of roads and 35,000 employees—opened its gates Sunday to several hundred thousand visitors.

President Roosevelt headed a kaleidoscopic program of inaugural ceremonies, coming down from Hyde Park to proclaim the fair a token of America's spirit of friendship and peace toward all the world.

He spoke before about 40,000
special guests from a huge wooden stand on the steps of the $3,000,000
federal building which heads the fair's main avenue, "Constitution
Mall," and dominates the "Court of Peace" formed by the imposing pavilions of a dozen nations.

At noon, two hours before, the fair's first ceremony took place in the dedication of the huge interdenominational "Temple of Religion" by leaders of several faiths.

There followed a parade down the mall with 25,000 announced participants—Army, Navy, Marines, police, fair workers and foreign groups
in an eye-filling array of variegated costumes.

After the President's address and speeches by Grover Whalen, the fair's dapper, top-hatted $100,000-
a-year chief, Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, and Governor Herbert Lehman, the throng of visitors
scattered throughout the grounds
for a multiplicity of other activities.

In his 15-minute speech, broadcast throughout the world and televised—the first time an American President has been "seen" over the air—President Roosevelt reviewed the details of Washington's inauguration and the rise of the United States commenting that "no
other form of government has remained unchanged 50 long and
seen, at the same time, any comparable expansion of population or
of area."

He called attention to the San Francisco Golden Gate exposition as providing "a view of the amazing
development of our far west."

The extensive foreign participation in the New York fair, he said,
"is a gesture of friendship and good will toward the United States for which I render grateful thanks."

U.S. to Map Regions of Antarctic Continent

Washington, May 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt's plan to send a map-
making expedition to south polar regions gave rise to speculation in some quarters today that the United States soon may make its first formal claim to part of the Antarctic continent.

Dr. Ernest H. Gruening, director
of territories and island possessions,
has outlined tentative plans, subject
to congressional approval, for an expedition late this summer. He said its main purpose would be to map areas explored by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, retired, and Lincoln Ellsworth.

SOVIET AIRMEN REACH NEW YORK

New York, May 1 (AP)—Two durable Russian fliers whose non-stop "good will" flight from Moscow
to the New York World's fair came to grief in a crackup on a marshy island off New Brunswick rested today at the Soviet consulate.

The airmen, first to fly from Moscow to North America via the Atlantic route as a single hop,
planned after catching up on their sleep to visit the fair grounds late
this afternoon.

Brig. Gen. Vladimir Kokkinaki,
the pilot, and his navigator, Major Mikhail Gordenko, were too weary
on their arrival at Floyd Bennett airport Sunday night to discuss details of their forced landing Friday night on Miscou Island, N. B.

"It was a difficult flight — the radio compass froze — the fog was very bad," Kokkinaki said briefly.

Both men grinned happily as Constantine Oumansky, Soviet
charge d'affaires, read them a message of felicitation from Josef Stalin, general secretary of the communist party.
Their smashed plane — still containing 300 gallons of gasoline —
was left on lonely Miscou island,
guarded by Canadian mounted police.

INDICTMENTS OF DEMOCRATS ARE ATTACKED

Harrisburg, May 1 (AP)—Council for high democrats indicted in the campaign charges case asked the Dauphin county court today to quash the indictments, claiming they were "illegally" obtained by District Attorney Carl B. Shelley.

Judge Howard W. Hughes fixed Thursday, May 4, to hear arguments on the right of the defendants to present testimony to support their motions, which cited five reasons for dismissal of the indictments.

Oliver K. Eaton, of Pittsburgh, and J. Dress Pannell, of Harrisburg, presented the motions to quash in Dauphin county court on behalf of David L. Lawrence, Democratic state chairman and former secretary of the commonwealth; Ralph M. Basehore, secretary of the democratic state committee and former secretary of Labor and Industry and nine others indicted during the grand jury investigation.

They explained that similar motions would be filed on behalf of Roy E. Brownmiller, former secretary of Highways, by his counsel, H. O. Bechtel, of Pottsville.

The motions averred: "1. That the secrecy of the grand jury was violated in that 'unauthorized' persons were present in the grand jury room when testimony was being taken upon which the presentment of the indictments was based.

"2. That the secrecy of the grand jury was further invaded in that the testimony they heard was made accessible, with the assent of the district attorney, to other persons for their examination.

"3. That the district attorney and his representatives took an 'undue interest' in the actions of the grand juries, both the investigating and indicting grand juries, far exceeding his duties and authority, and influenced the said grand juries in matters which should have been left entirely to their discretion and within their control.

"4. That the safeguards surrounding the grand jury were breached by the said appointments, intrusions and conduct of those purporting to be special assistants to the district attorney to Dauphin county, and others, which had a tendency to impress and dupe influence each grand jury, making the investigation and considering the indictments, to the belief that the commonwealth, and its representatives, were interested in and desired the finding and return of indictments; and thereby the defendants were prejudiced.

"5. That the indictments are not based on any accusation first made before a committing magistrate, founded upon probable cause, and supported by oath or affirmation."

Eaton and Pannell said their clients were "ready and willing" to support their motions "by clear and satisfactory evidence" and asked Judge Hughes to fix a date for a hearing.

Teachers Near Shamokin Vote to End Strike

Shamokin, Pa., May 1 (AP)—Teachers in Coal and Mt. Carmel townships voted today to end their strike for overdue salaries that has kept some schools closed more than two weeks.

The Coal township school board announced it had arranged a loan with a local bank to procure $82,000 for salaries. This, with $42,250 in state funds, will provide four months of the teachers' back pay.

Mt. Carmel school board prepared two months' back pay checks with $25,000 in taxes paid by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company. The township planned to accept $11,000 from the state toward the balance owed the instructors there.

STOCK REPORT

New York, May 1 (AP)—Leading stocks backed away moderately in today's market. Selling was never insistent, however, and a few issues managed to edge upward near midday. Declines, on the whole, were insignificant.

FUGITIVE RELEASED

Norristown, Pa., May 1 (AP)—A Texas jail fugitive who had married and reared a family in Pennsylvania since his escape 17 years ago was freed from the county prison here today when Texas failed to present papers for his extradition.

Council May Purchase Street Material Tonight

Purchase of stone chips for the use of the borough highway department in repairing designated town streets is expected to be decided upon at the regular May meeting of the borough council this evening at 8 o'clock in the engine house.

Inquiry made of President Ray M. Hoffman about the probability that action may be taken on the question of Daylight Saving Time for Gettysburg brought the reply that he found most members of council unwilling to sponsor such a move this year and that if the question is brought up this evening it will have to come from citizens of the town.
